"PATRIOTISM" IS DEFENSE PLEA IN OIL CASE

JURY COMPOSED OF TWO WOMEN AND TEN MEN

MARTIN LITTLETON IS DEFENSE CHIEF FOR FALL AND SINCLAIR

COURT IS TO SIT 4 HOURS DAILY, RECESSING OVER SATURDAY AND SUNDAY

By HERBERT LITTLE
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, Oct. 19. — (UP) — With "patriotism" indicated as a defense plea in the Fall-Sinclair oil conspiracy trial, Martin Littleton, defense chief, today told the jury of two women and ten men that the famous New Year's Day 1922 conference at Three Rivers, N. M., between Fall and Sinclair was primarily to discuss Osage Indian oil land leases.

The prosecution had said it would attempt to show this meeting between the aged secretary and the powerful oil-race horse man was the origin of an arch conspiracy to defraud the government in connection with the Fall lease of Teapot Dome to Sinclair.

Littleton said Sinclair asked Fall at the conference if he intended to lease the Dome, but insisted the Osage land question was foremost.

The Littleton version of the meeting is substantially the same as the government's except that the government insists that at the New Mexico ranch the two men began the alleged plot which, the government charges, ended with transfer of more than $200,000 in liberty bonds from Sinclair to a kinsman of Fall in connection with the lease.

Littleton contended that Sinclair was only taking one step in connection with the navy's attempt to obtain fuel oil for battleships. He had previously indicated Sinclair and Fall would contend they were merely aiding national defense plans—not conspiring to cheat the government.

Announcement today that the court would sit four hours daily and recess over Saturday and Sunday raised prospect that the trial would last until winter.

The aged Fall appeared in fair condition at the trial today, although he is closely watched by his family and physicians because of a cold, according to his attorneys. Sinclair and his family smiled as they entered court, the oil multi-millionaire pausing to congratulate a cartoonist on a sketch he did of Sinclair yesterday.

Littleton indicated the defense intended to shunt responsibility in the case from Fall's shoulders to those of other officials. He told the jury, for instance, the defense would show that Rear Admiral J. K. Robison, navy oil expert, instead of the defendants—originated the so-called oil exchange plan embodied in the Teapot Dome and Elk Hills leases, put through by Fall. Under this plan, the navy was to receive some fuel oil for its battle craft in exchange for the crude oil Sinclair would wrest from the rich Dome reserve in Wyoming.

"Robison was the first to suggest exchange of navy royalty oil (in the reserves) for fuel oil stored in tanks at naval bases," the lawyer said.

Then Littleton told of the so-called "policy letter of October 5" which he said was drafted by Robison and approved by Fall, and proposed storage of fuel oil for battleships, not for current needs, but for possible emergency needs.

Washington, Oct. 19.—The Fall-Sinclair oil conspiracy jury of two women and ten men was told today by the defense chief, Martin Littleton, that Harry Sinclair "never passed a bond to Albert B. Fall."

Martin W. Littleton, in an advance summation of the case for the two noted defendants, charged with conspiracy to defraud the government, did the following:

1. Credited Admiral J. K. Robison, naval oil chief, as originator of the oil leasing plan under which Teapot Dome and Elk Hills were leased.

2. Said Secretary of State Denby knew of every step in the lease negotiations.

3. Said Sinclair never owned a share of stock in the Continental Trading Company, the alleged source of $230,500 of liberty bonds found in Fall's possession following the execution of the Teapot leases.

4. Said that Sinclair's $25,000 payment to Fall in 1923 was made in liberty bonds "because bonds were easier to send than a check." (This payment was in connection with Fall's trip to Russia as counsel for Sinclair, it was asserted.)

5. Termed the government's charge that Sinclair gave the bonds to Fall, "a fugitive and phantom thing."

Littleton concluded after a speech of two hours and 45 minutes, and a recess was taken preparatory to opening of the government's testimony.

Through Littleton's summation ran the clear indication that Fall and Sinclair intend, partly at least, to claim patriotic motives as actuating the deal whereby Teapot Dome passed from the government's hands to Sinclair's Mammoth Oil Company.

Litteton indicated clearly the defense intends to pass from Fall to Admiral Robison and the then Secretary of the Navy Denby much of the responsibility for the deal. It was a transaction, he said, in furth-

DEEDS COOLIDGE 176 ACRES FOR FARM STUDY

FORMER SENATOR LUKE DUFFY OF INDIANA REGARDS SITUATION AS HOPELESS

SAYS HE TRIED TO SELL FARM, OR TRADE IT TO CREDITORS, ETC.

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 19.—(UP)—President Coolidge's new farm, deeded to him by former State Senator Luke Duffy as a first-hand lesson in mid-western farmers' problems, might become a boomerang if the president were in a position to direct intensive tilling of the 176-acre tract.

Hopeless as Duffy and many other Indiana land owners find the farm situation, Mr. Coolidge, whose ancestors have forced a living for generations from rocky Vermont soil, could apply New England methods of intensive cultivation to the tract, and some farm observers believed today such cultivation would make it pay.

The farm is 176 acres, in northern Pulaski county less than 100 miles from Chicago. It is "fine for truck gardening, onions, buckwheat and all other crops which can be grown in Indiana," Duffy said.

"I tried to sell it, tried to trade it to creditors and tried to give it away," he said. "Nobody would take it. So I decided to deed it to a worthy cause."

The president was named trustee to the farm for Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, Secretary of Commerce Hoover, Secretary of Agriculture Jardine, Senators James A. Reed, Simeon Fess and Pat Harrison, Rep. Finis Garrett and Julius Barnes former president of the United States Chamber of Commerce.

It is Mr. Coolidge's "to have and to hold, to maintain and support" until certain conditions, which amount to a comprehensive program of farm relief, are fulfilled, under the deed transferring the property to the president. Then it is to become a park, to be known as "Coolidge Industrial Park."

A $3,500 mortgage on the property is "well under its value," Duffy said.

If the president accepts the farm, he will find it an expensive proposition unless he gives it personal attention and tries Vermont methods on it, farm experts predicted. Many Indiana farms such as the Duffy tract are losing money, they said, and others barely pay expenses. On the other hand, some farmers in the state manage to live comfortably, it was pointed out.

BUSINESSMEN ARE CONSIDERING FARM PROBLEMS

SPEAKERS ADDRESS NATIONAL COUNCILLORS AND SECRETARIES OF C. OF C.

SEEK TO MAKE BUSINESS AND AGRICULTURE MORE CLOSELY CO-OPERATIVE

West Baden, Ind., Oct. 19.—(UP)—Problems of the farmer today were before businessmen of the country for consideration as a part of the national legislative policies of business.

The matter came up when speakers addressed the convention of National Councillors and Secretaries of the Chamber of Commerce. It was urged that the businessmen stand behind an "intelligent national agricultural policy, embodying national and state legislative features and regional studies of waste elimination."

Dwight B. Heard, Phoenix, Ariz., publisher, declared the national chamber has been gradually drawing up a plan whereby business and agriculture may be more closely co-operative.

Heard said the chamber wished to prove to the farmers that organized business was prepared to extend practical services in solving agricultural problems. A mere "sympathetic gesture" does not improve the farmers' conditions, he declared.

A review of the federal reserve banking system, to be made at a national conference of business, financial and industrial leaders, was authorized yesterday.

Resolutions were adopted endorsing the council's approval of federal tax reduction, legislation for flood control and revision of postal rates.

Julius H. Barnes, American vice-president of the International Chamber of Commerce, declared America has played a substantial part in world reconstruction in the last few years.

"European businessmen are beginning to accept as a basis for economic and political action the American principle that standards of living must be advanced for all classes of people in order to increase consuming power," he said.

HOPE TO SECURE STAY OF EXECUTION

Chicago, Oct. 19.—(UP)—Preparations by the state to hang Mrs. Catherine Cassler, charged with the murder of William Lindstrom, went ahead today, as the woman, her family and attorneys made last minute efforts—expected to be successful—to obtain a stay of execution. Mrs. Cassler is under sentence to be hanged in the Cook county jail Friday.

A plea by Mrs. Cassler for a stay of execution was postponed until tomorrow, when Judge Phillip Sullivan, who presided at the trial last spring, is expected to return from New York.

Chief Justice William Brothers, before whom Mrs. Cassler appeared yesterday, indicated that if Judge Sullivan did not return by tomorrow, he would grant a stay himself. Gov. Small will be appealed to if the stay is not granted, according to attorneys.

Mrs. Cassler was accused of the murder jointly with Lillian Fraser and Loren Patrick. It was charged the three killed Lindstrom for his insurance. The other two testified against Mrs. Cassler and were sentenced to life imprisonment.

CAPTAIN AND CREW OF SCHOONER SAVED

Washington, Oct. 19—(U.P.)—The captain and crew of the American schooner William Burnham, of Mobile, Ala., were rescued by the steamship President Adams at 6:30 a. m. today, according to word at coast guard headquarters here.

The schooner was set afire before being abandoned. Coast guard cutters are being sent to see if the craft can be salvaged.

FAMILY OF 6 DIE, TRAPPED BY FIRE IN APARTMENT

Cleveland, Ohio, Oct. 19.—(U.P.)—Trapped in their small living quarters on the second floor of a garage building, an entire family of six perished early today when fire leveled the structure.

The dead: Rufus Williams; his wife Beatrice; Bessie Williams, 7; Andrew Williams, 4; Anna May Williams, 3, and Retha May Williams, 4 months.

Firemen, who fought the flames in an unavailing effort to save the family, reported that the only stairway leading to the Williams apartment had burned away in the early stages of the fire.

The bodies of Mrs. Williams and her four months old baby were found beneath a bed. The bodies of three older children were found on the floor. The father was lying in bed.

Three firemen had a narrow escape when they were enveloped in flames while attempting to reach the apartment by ladder.

DIRECT PRIMARY LAW WINS OUT IN STATE OF MAINE

TWO TO ONE VICTORY ACHIEVED BY ITS ADHERENTS

EXTREMELY LIGHT VOTE REFLECTS MILD INTEREST IN REFERENDUM

Portland, Me., Oct. 19.—(UP)—The direct primary law has won a two-to-one victory in Maine, returns from yesterday's referendum showed today.

Returns from 584 out of 633 election precincts, representing 460 of the 519 cities and towns of the state, showed:

For repeal, 19,360.
Against repeal, 39,194.

Extremely light vote reflected the mild interest in the referendum, which involved the question as to whether Maine should continue the direct primary system or revert to the party caucus and convention system.

Cities to which opponents of the direct primary had pointed as their strongholds failed to produce the anticipated strength and most rural districts registered overwhelmingly against the proposed repeal.

Only three of Maine's 28 cities favored repeal of the direct primary law. These were Eastport, Waterville and Rockland. The cities as a whole gave a majority of 4,573 votes for the primary.

Not a single county, according to latest returns, favored a change to the caucus system. The closest vote appeared to be in Cumberland county, where the direct primary won, 5,787 to 4,649.

In 1911, when the direct primary was adopted, the margin in its favor was 44,036, the total being 65,810 to 21,774.

COURT FIGHT OVER DOG AND HER PUPPIES

Two Harbors, Minn., Oct. 19.—(U.P.)—Lady, female police dog owned by Alex Olson, wandered away from home last August.

Two Harbors police picked her up and turned her over to Wilfred Johnson, local fancier, until the owner was located.

During the time she stayed at Johnson's kennels, Lady gave birth to a litter of pups.

And it was over these pups that legal talent was called into play.

A jury in Two Harbors municipal court late yesterday awarded Johnson $68 against Olson for board and stud charges.

Lady and her family did not appear in court.

STATE-WIDE WALKOUT OF 6,000 WORKERS

LITTLE TROUBLE IS EXPECTED IN THE NORTHERN FIELDS

THERE MINERS ARE ON SYMPATHY STRIKE WITH I. W. W. WORKERS

Denver, Colo., Oct. 19.—(UP)—Striking coal miners in the Walsenburg and Aguilar districts today threatened to ignore anti-picketing orders issued by the Colorado Industrial Commission.

Interest in the state-wide walkout of 6,000 mine workers centered in the Southern Colorado fields. Little trouble was expected in the northern fields where the miners are on a sympathy strike with I. W. W. workers seeking more pay and fewer working hours.

The anti-picketing demands of the state industrial commission were read by Sheriff H. J. Capps at Walsenburg and by Sheriff J. J. Marty at Aguilar last night. More than 150 men at the Aguilar meeting unanimously decided to disregard the order. No action was taken at Walsenburg, but it was predicted picketing would continue there.

Governor Adams said that there was nothing in the situation to cause apprehension by his office.

He is "keeping in touch with the situation," however, he said, by long distance telephone and is prepared to act if an emergency arises.

Although peace marked the first day of the strike, Sheriff Capps announced at Walsenburg that he still has 50 deputies, commissioned at the time of the Sacco-Vanzetti sympathy strike.

Unverified reports were that investigations are under way at Walsenburg where guns and ammunition are said to have been received by strike leaders.

Another rumor was current that some operators have equipped their mines with machine guns. The United Press had no confirmation of either report.

I. W. W. leaders have cautioned their followers that no violence of any sort will be tolerated. Sheriff's officers and members of the state industrial commission are taking every precaution against trouble.

The only disorder reported was in the Trinidad district where 17 pickets were arrested. Otherwise a majority of the strikers in all fields generally donned their best clothes and spent the first day as a holiday.

Half of the miners on strike were from the northern coal fields, where a sympathetic walkout was organized. The percentage of strikers here was far greater than in the southern Colorado district.

The striking miners are seeking a wage of $7.50 a day, a five-day week and a six-hour day. They are receiving $6.20 under the present scale.

STOCK TRAIN CRASHES INTO CABOOSE OF FRUIT SPECIAL

Glenwood Springs, Colo., Oct. 19.—(U.P.)—Crashing into the caboose of a Western Pacific fruit special, stock train No. 1171 of the Denver and Rio Grande Western railroad today brought death to one man, injuries to six others, and destroyed a carload of sheep.

The collision occurred in the railroad yards here.

L. E. Brown, prominent stockman of Las Animas, was killed.

The injured were taken to the Glenwood Springs hospital for treatment.

N. D. STATE NURSES' ASSOCIATION MEETS

FIRE SUFFOCATES 4 NEGRO CHILDREN LOCKED IN ROOM

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 19.—(U.P.)—Fire which caused less than $25 damage suffocated four negro children who were locked into a room of their home here late yesterday.

The dead are Leroy Clayton, 8 months; and Edward, Tillie and Agnes Elam, two, three and four years old respectively.

Their mother told police she locked them in when she went shopping to prevent them from "getting into mischief."

NATION IS IN FAIRLY GOOD ECONOMIC SHAPE

REASONABLE PROSPECTS OF NO WEAK PLACES DEVELOPING

PRES. COOLIDGE SO INFORMED BY MEMBERS OF HIS CABINET

Washington, Oct. 19.—(UP)—The nation is in fairly good economic condition and there are reasonable prospects that no weak places will develop in the near future, President Coolidge was informed today by members of his cabinet in touch with the industrial pulse of the nation.

Announcement was made from the White House that the business situation is apparently improving and the outlook for the future is encouraging.

Building construction throughout the country is only one fourth of one per cent less than a year ago, Mr. Coolidge has been informed. There has been some falling off in the net receipts of railroads but no decrease in the amount of commerce being handled. Many people are riding in automobiles instead of traveling on trains and therefore the decrease in railroad receipts was to be expected in the president's opinion. He does not however consider that decrease is any indication of diminution of prosperity, but feels rather that more people are buying automobiles.

Coal transportation is not as heavy this year as last because consumers last year expected a coal strike and were laying in heavy stocks. They are now using up those stocks, it was pointed out.

The president has been informed the coal strike has been settled to a very great extent; that Illinois and most of Indiana mines, and a considerable portion of the mines in Ohio are now working. There is still some trouble in western Pennsylvania and the eastern edge of Ohio, but production there is being maintained by non union mines, it was said.

With the exception of cotton, agricultural crops is fully as good as last year, the White House said.

There has been some increase of production over expectations because of warm fall weather. The price is not as high as it was early in the season but is still higher than last year.

Cattle prices are higher but the sheep and hog market is not in a good condition.

The president's official informants attribute the high cotton crop this year to ravages of the boll weevil. During the last few years the weather has been such that little attention was paid to the boll weevil, it was said and Mr. Coolidge believes insufficient precautions were taken against the weevil this year.

Indications are that automobile production should increase and while there is some unemployment, reports to the labor department generally indicate there is no decrease in employment this year as compared with last year.

Sales by mail order houses have materially increased indicating to Mr. Coolidge that there is a larger buying power this year. He believes the better conditions of agriculture should result in a somewhat great buying power in the farm regions.

The secretary of treasury reported there is an abundance of funds available and that credit conditions are good. Exports and imports are keeping up and exports are larger than last year. Value of imports has fallen off but volume is being maintained on a creditable scale.

Labor department statistics reaching Mr. Coolidge show there were but 27 strikes in progress this year compared to fifty last year.

While in Pittsburgh last week Mr. Coolidge was informed that the Pennsylvania railroad is buying 300,000 tons of steel rails in one order. Railroads, he believes need replacements to keep up with modern methods of efficient transportation.

This resume has convinced the chief executive that there are no weak places in the present outlook and he is convinced present conditions will continue.

INSPIRING ADDRESSES GIVEN HERE

Yesterday was Hanford Cox Day in Brainerd Rotary. The genial head of Ninth District Rotary arrived unheralded and unannounced a day before the official visit, motoring from Cloquet with his wife. Traveling incognito Mr. Cox gave Brainerd an examination from the north side to south side, east side to west side, and knew as much about the town as many a resident.

Years ago when Mr. Cox attended Cloquet high school, W. C. Cobb was superintendent of schools. So in addition to a bond of Rotary tying Mr. Cox to Brainerd, there were also fond school memories.

At the morning session held in the Chamber of Commerce rooms, Mr. Cox met the officers, board of directors and committee chairmen of Brainerd Rotary and examined into working conditions here and gave sage advice wherever required. He referred to the fact that all officers of the district who had attended the meeting of presidents and secretaries at Brainerd were retaining stirring recollections of the good and profitable time spent here and at the lakes.

His visit here was three-fold. It was to gain a personal acquaintance with the officers, to gain a close-up of the local club and to make a report of International Rotary, and to offer his services if he could be of any assistance in bettering things.

At the noon meeting of the club Mr. Cox was introduced by Supt. W. C. Cobb. In his address he showed fully that he is a most engaging orator, one who can well illustrate and carry home the points he wishes to make.

"Take Rotary Seriously" is the slogan this year, he said. "Are you making Rotarians of your members?" asked Mr. Cox and then he explained that this is the biggest job of Rotary. It is no credit to Rotary to have merely a club of endorsers and supporters. They must be more than that. They must be a club of doers. The obligations of Rotary require one to be constant in attendance, to pay one's dues regularly and to do what one is called upon to do. At the close of his address Mr. Cox was given an ovation.

S. R. Adair reported on the progress of program for the coming teachers' banquet.

SAY PUBLIC ASKS FOR SPORT NEWS

Chicago, Oct. 19.—(U.P.)—Editors and publishers attending the Inland Dailies Press association meeting here in connection wiht advertising men from all parts of the United States and several foreign countries, will continue to carry a large amount of sport news in their newspapers, but it isn't because they want to, they said.

The large amount of sporting news was looked upon with disfavor by many of the editors, but they said it would be necessary to continue to carry it in quantity because the public demands it.

The question of the large amount of publicity given professional sports was discussed at length by the editors but no solution was offered.

Some editors suggested that perhaps it would be better to devote a few more columns of news to church happenings and less to sport.

EXTREMELY LIGHT VOTE REFLECTS MILD INTEREST IN REFERENDUM

Portland, Me., Oct. 19.—(UP) — The direct primary law has won a two-to-one victory in Maine, returns from yesterday's referendum showed today.

Returns from 584 out of 633 election precincts, representing 460 of the 519 cities and towns of the state, showed:

For repeal, 19,360.
Against repeal, 39,194.

Extremely light vote reflected the mild interest in the referendum, which involved the question as to whether Maine should continue the direct primary system or revert to the party caucus and convention system.

Cities to which opponents of the direct primary had pointed as their strongholds failed to produce the anticipated strength and most rural districts registered overwhelmingly against the proposed repeal.

Only three of Maine's 28 cities favored repeal of the direct primary law. These were Eastport, Waterville and Rockland. The cities as a whole gave a majority of 4,573 votes for the primary.

Not a single county, according to latest returns, favored a change to the caucus system. The closest vote appeared to be in Cumberland county, where the direct primary won, 5,787 to 4,649.

In 1911, when the direct primary was adopted, the margin in its favor was 44,036, the total being 65,810 to 21,774.

COURT FIGHT OVER DOG AND HER PUPPIES

Two Harbors police picked her up and turned her over to Wilfred Johnson, local fancier, until the owner was located.

During the time she stayed at Johnson's kennels, Lady gave birth to a litter of pups.

And it was over these pups that legal talent was called into play.

A jury in Two Harbors municipal court late yesterday awarded Johnson $68 against Olson for board and stud charges.

Lady and her family did not appear in court.

STATE-WIDE WALKOUT OF 6,000 WORKERS

THERE MINERS ARE ON SYMPATHY STRIKE WITH I. W. W. WORKERS

Denver, Colo., Oct. 19.—(UP) — Striking coal miners in the Walsenburg and Aguilar districts today threatened to ignore anti-picketing orders issued by the Colorado Industrial Commission.

Interest in the state-wide walkout of 6,000 mine workers centered in the Southern Colorado fields. Little trouble was expected in the northern fields where the miners are on a sympathy strike with I. W. W. workers seeking more pay and fewer working hours.

The anti-picketing demands of the state industrial commission were read by Sheriff H. J. Capps at Walsenburg and by Sheriff J. J. Marty at Aguilar last night. More than 150 men at the Aguilar meeting unanimously decided to disregard the order. No action was taken at Walsenburg, but it was predicted picketing would continue there.

Governor Adams said that there was nothing in the situation to cause apprehension by his office.

He is "keeping in touch with the situation," however, he said, by long distance telephone and is prepared to act if an emergency arises.

Although peace marked the first day of the strike, Sheriff Capps announced at Walsenburg that he still has 50 deputies, commissioned at the time of the Sacco-Vanzetti sympathy strike.

Unverified reports were that investigations are under way at Walsenburg where guns and ammunition are said to have been received by strike leaders.

Another rumor was current that some operators have equipped their mines with machine guns. The United Press had no confirmation of either report.

I. W. W. leaders have cautioned their followers that no violence of any sort will be tolerated. Sheriff's officers and members of the state industrial commission are taking every precaution against trouble.

The only disorder reported was in the Trinidad district where 17 pickets were arrested. Otherwise a majority of the strikers in all fields generally donned their best clothes and spent the first day as a holiday.

Half of the miners on strike were from the northern coal fields, where a sympathetic walkout was organized. The percentage of strikers here was far greater than in the southern Colorado district.

The striking miners are seeking a wage of $7.50 a day, a five-day week and a six-hour day. They are receiving $6.20 under the present scale.

The collision occurred in the railroad yards here.

The injured were taken to the Glenwood Springs hospital for treatment.

FIRE SUFFOCATES 4 NEGRO CHILDREN LOCKED IN ROOM

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 19.—(U.P.)—Fire which caused less than $25 damage suffocated four negro children who were locked into a room of their home here late yesterday.

The dead are Leroy Clayton, 8 months; and Edward, Tillie and Agnes Elam, two, three and four years old respectively.

Their mother told police she locked them in when she went shopping to prevent them from "getting into mischief."

NATION IS IN FAIRLY GOOD ECONOMIC SHAPE

REASONABLE PROSPECTS OF NO WEAK PLACES DEVELOPING

PRES. COOLIDGE SO INFORMED BY MEMBERS OF HIS CABINET

Washington, Oct. 19.—(U.P.)—The nation is in fairly good economic condition and there are reasonable prospects that no weak places will develop in the near future, President Coolidge was informed today by members of his cabinet in touch with the industrial pulse of the nation.

Announcement was made from the White House that the business situation is apparently improving and the outlook for the future is encouraging.

Building construction throughout the country is only one fourth of one per cent less than a year ago, Mr. Coolidge has been informed. There has been some falling off in the net receipts of railroads but no decrease in the amount of commerce being handled. Many people are riding in automobiles instead of traveling on trains and therefore the decrease in railroad receipts was to be expected in the president's opinion. He does not however consider that decrease is any indication of diminution of prosperity, but feels rather that more people are buying automobiles.

Coal transportation is not as heavy this year as last because consumers last year expected a coal strike and were laying in heavy stocks. They are now using up those stocks, it was pointed out.

The president has been informed the coal strike has been settled to a very great extent; that Illinois and most of Indiana mines, and a considerable portion of the mines in Ohio are now working. There is still some trouble in western Pennsylvania and the eastern edge of Ohio, but production there is being maintained by non union mines, it was said.

With the exception of cotton, agricultural crops is fully as good as last year, the White House said.

There has been some increase of production over expectations because of warm fall weather. The price is not as high as it was early in the season but is still higher than last year.

Cattle prices are higher but the sheep and hog market is not in a good condition.

The president's official informants attribute the high cotton crop this year to ravages of the boll weevil. During the last few years the weather has been such that little attention was paid to the boll weevil, it was said and Mr. Coolidge believes insufficient precautions were taken against the weevil this year.

Indications are that automobile production should increase and while there is some unemployment, reports to the labor department generally indicate there is no decrease in employment this year as compared with last year.

Sales by mail order houses have materially increased indicating to Mr. Coolidge that there is a larger buying power this year. He believes the better conditions of agriculture should result in a somewhat great buying power in the farm regions.

The secretary of treasury reported there is an abundance of funds available and that credit conditions are good. Exports and imports are keeping up and exports are larger than last year. Value of imports has fallen off but volume is being maintained on a creditable scale.

Labor department statistics reaching Mr. Coolidge show there were but 27 strikes in progress this year compared to fifty last year.

While in Pittsburgh last week Mr. Coolidge was informed that the Pennsylvania railroad is buying 300,000 tons of steel rails in one order. Railroads, he believes need replacements to keep up with modern methods of efficient transportation.

This resume has convinced the chief executive that there are no weak places in the present outlook and he is convinced present conditions will continue.

INSPIRING ADDRESSES GIVEN HERE

Yesterday was Hanford Cox Day in Brainerd Rotary. The genial head of Ninth District Rotary arrived unheralded and unannounced a day before the official visit, motoring from Cloquet with his wife. Traveling incognito Mr. Cox gave Brainerd an examination from the north side to south side, east side to west side, and knew as much about the town as many a resident.

Years ago when Mr. Cox attended Cloquet high school, W. C. Cobb was superintendent of schools. So in addition to a bond of Rotary tying Mr. Cox to Brainerd, there were also fond school memories.

At the morning session held in the Chamber of Commerce rooms, Mr. Cox met the officers, board of directors and committee chairmen of Brainerd Rotary and examined into working conditions here and gave sage advice wherever required. He referred to the fact that all officers of the district who had attended the meeting of presidents and secretaries at Brainerd were retaining stirring recollections of the good and profitable time spent here and at the lakes.

His visit here was three-fold. It was to gain a personal acquaintance with the officers, to gain a close-up of the local club and to make a report of International Rotary, and to offer his services if he could be of any assistance in bettering things.

At the noon meeting of the club Mr. Cox was introduced by Supt. W. C. Cobb. In his address he showed fully that he is a most engaging orator, one who can well illustrate and carry home the points he wishes to make.

"Take Rotary Seriously" is the slogan this year, he said. "Are you making Rotarians of your members?" asked Mr. Cox and then he explained that this is the biggest job of Rotary. It is no credit to Rotary to have merely a club of endorsers and supporters. They must be more than that. They must be a club of doers. The obligations of Rotary require one to be constant in attendance, to pay one's dues regularly and to do what one is called upon to do. At the close of his address Mr. Cox was given an ovation.

S. R. Adair reported on the progress of program for the coming teachers' banquet.

SAY PUBLIC ASKS FOR SPORT NEWS

Chicago, Oct. 19.—(U.P.)—Editors and publishers attending the Inland Dailies Press association meeting here in connection with advertising men from all parts of the United States and several foreign countries, will continue to carry a large amount of sport news in their newspapers, but it isn't because they want to, they said.

The large amount of sporting news was looked upon with disfavor by many of the editors, but they said it would be necessary to continue to carry it in quantity because the public demands it.

The question of the large amount of publicity given professional sports was discussed at length by the editors but no solution was offered.

Some editors suggested that perhaps it would be better to devote a few more columns of news to church happenings and less to sport.

Just as soon as you apply Red Pepper Rub you will feel the tingling heat. In three minutes it warms the sore spot through and through. Pain and soreness are gone.

SAGE TEA DANDY TO DARKEN HAIR

It's Grandmother's Recipe to Bring Back Color and Lustre to Hair

You can turn gray, faded hair beautifully dark and lustrous almost over night if you'll get a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" at any drug store. Millions of bottles of this old famous Sage Tea Recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, are sold annually, say well-known druggists here, because it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that no one can tell it has been applied.

Those whose hair is turning gray or becoming faded have a surprise awaiting them, because after one or two applications the gray hair vanishes and your locks become luxuriantly dark and beautiful.

This is the age of youth. Gray-haired, unattractive folks aren't wanted around, so get busy with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound to-night and you'll be delighted with your dark, handsome hair and your youthful appearance within a few days.

BILLY SUNDAY MAY STUMP THE UNITED STATES

AS PRESIDENTIAL CANDIDATE IN DEFENSE OF PROHIBITION

IF BOTH MAJOR PARTIES NOMINATE WET CANDIDATES NEXT YEAR

West Frankfort, Ill., Oct. 19.—(U.P.)—Billy Sunday, widely known evangelist, announced in a statement to the United Press here today that he would "stump the country as a presidential candidate in defense of prohibition if both major parties nominate 'wet' candidates next year."

Although admitting he considered it "highly improbable that both parties would nominate wets" Sunday asserted that "in such an extreme case I certainly should run on an independent ticket in defense of national prohibition."

Sunday, who is here conducting a five-week drive to "clean up southern Illinois," had made the statement in several recent sermons, and today was asked specifically if he was "serious about it."

"Sure, I was in earnest," he said, "although I consider it not at all probable that either party would dare to nominate a wet candidate. But if both of them nominate wets, I shall stump the country on an independent dry ticket.

"I am not a politician," he added, "But the present prosperity of the United States is based on prohibition, and if the republicans and the democrats both should nominate wet candidates, I shall be in the race in defense of the dry laws."

Romance of Best-known Fisherman in the World

From early childhood this fisherman has been a familiar figure, yet few know the circumstances that brought him into use as a trade mark. As the record reads, over a third of a century ago one of the founders of the house of Scott & Bowne, while on one of his annual trips to the Land of the Midnight Sun to select and purchase supplies of pure Norwegian cod-liver oil which has always been the basis of the merit of Scott's Emulsion, had his attention attracted to a strong, robust Norwegian fisherman, on the shore of one of the Lofoten Islands, who was just coming in with his daily catch and who was struggling under a heavy load. He had just brought ashore the largest cod-fish ever caught on that coast. Impressed with this unusual sight of the bronzed-faced fisherman with the large cod-fish strapped to his back, it was decided that they could be made into an effective advertising symbol, to send throughout the world in the interest of Scott's Emulsion of pure Norwegian cod-liver oil. Right on the shore the man with the big fish was sketched and later put into color, and since that day until now this picture has been sent as an advertising evangel in newspapers, magazines, on cards, posters, and in many other ways, to the ends of the earth.

BARGE LINE SYSTEM UP TO GOVERNMENT

WAR DEPARTMENT WILL MAKE NO RECOMMENDATIONS TO CONGRESS

LATTER BODY IS TO DECIDE IF SUCH NAVIGATION IS TO CONTINUE

By PAUL R. MALLON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Chillicothe, O., Oct. 19.—The war department will make no recommendations but will let congress decide whether the government should continue operating its vast barge line system in the middle west, Secretary of War Davis indicated today en route for a joint flood and barge line inspection trip through the Mississippi valley.

Davis announced he would to Minneapolis after his flood trip through the lower Mississippi region, and would make a two-day journey down to Dubuque, Iowa, to see how the government barge line there is working.

Midwest Chambers of Commerce have stirred agitation for expansion of the barge line system on the Mississippi and Warrior rivers. Several delegations have appealed to President Coolidge to enlarge and maintain the system, which undercuts rail rates 20 per cent.

The White House, however, has made plain Mr. Coolidge considers the barge lines as congressional projects for experimental purposes only. The president does not believe the government should continue in the business beyond the experimental period.

Davis pointed out to the United Press that the Mississippi lines lost $255,000 in 1923, the first year of operation, but last year made a paper profit of nearly that sum. The Warrior line broke even, he said.

The war secretary's tour has been so arranged that he can present his barge line report to congress as soon as it reconvenes.

Davis will attend the annual convention of the National Guard at Minneapolis Oct. 27 before starting on his barge inspection trip down the Mississippi. He will be unable, he said, to inspect the line of the Warrior.

The secretary will arrive at St. Louis at 5 P. M. today and will leave an hour later for Stuttgart, Ark., where he will begin inspecting flood levee repair work being conducted by army engineers.

TIME MEANS EVERYTHING

TIME means everything in these days of business and hustle and worry. Borrow money at a bank and see how fast the time goes in meeting payment.

There is a time for everything, it seems, but one has to hustle to meet the various dates in the calendar. Sam Adair is collecting taxes this month and it's the time to pay now and avoid the penalty that attaches non-payment or slow payment.

You buy a car and the salesman expatiates on the time it makes, so many miles an hour, so many miles on a gallon of gasoline. It travels so fast you wonder how you will ever unlimber the machinery if traffic cops continue to find jobs.

People these days seek a good time. The home is deserted for the movies and other attractions. The radio has stirred a nation of householders and caused many to cling to their firesides to tune in on XYZ and one gets to know Central Time from Mountain Time.

You buy a washing machine for your wife and the salesman dwells on how quickly it washes clothes and saves the time of your wife. You go to a dance these days or rather nights and you wonder how the jazz orchestra can murder time and get away with it.

You attend a luncheon club meeting and the speaker overruns his time limit and everybody except the speaker gets mad.

The merchant buys a large stock of summer goods and expects a hot time this summer and it gets cool and he has an awful time unloading.

There is a time for rejoicing and a time to weep, a time to check up the stubs and see where the bank balance went when the monthly statement comes in.

Time is the essence of all building contracts. Everybody is governed by it except our worthy friend the plumber, who always finds time to go back to the shop and get more tools.

Jack Dempsey lost his fight because he didn't take the time to walk to a neutral corner. If he had fought Firpo in Chicago, he and the Pampas Bull would have qualified as long distance runners "beating it back" to their corners seven times each in one round.

Many a household is disrupted on the time question. Breakfast is late and everything else gets out of joint on this account.

And when people get a lot of time, for instance when the Judge says 30 days or five years, the recipient of the sentence isn't satisfied either.

When death comes no man can say "Nay" to the Grim Reaper and that is one time when you can't plead other pressing engagements. Your time is up and you pass off the earthly stage to celestial heights or subterranean depths.

GOOD AT SIXTY

THE Albany Evening News intimates that a man has some use in society even when he attains the age of sixty. Granted he has a fairly good frame, that his mentality is unimpaired, we can see where the so-called Osler theory is plain bunk. The best generals of the Allies in the World War were old men. Foch and Pershing are no spring chickens, neither is Hindenburg.

Here is what the News has to say: Dr. W. A. Newman Dorland has told the Illinois State Welfare association that "there is no reason why a man who showed initiative up to the age of 60 should quit showing it at that age. He can succeed as well at 60 as at 30 if he keeps his health, his optimism and his interest. We do know that the practice of corporations and universities of retiring their men at 60 is a waste of the best brains."

Dr. Dorland has been making a special study and these are his findings. He shows that the great men of years ago died twenty-five years younger than do those of the present time. The average span of life has been lengthened from thirty-five to fifty-six years.

The theory, wrongfully attributed to Dr. Osler, has been disproved many, many times. Most men are younger now at 60 than were men of 40 in other times. Man's usefulness cannot be measured by his years, but by his health, his interest and his optimism. Many good minds have been wasted because of the old notion that men should be retired at 60. A man's mental age depends in large measure on himself. If he thinks he belongs in the chimney corner, that is the place for him. But if he keeps his health and a progressive mental outlook, he may be worth more at 60 than at 35. A lot of old notions are going by the board and that of assuming that a man at 60 is too old to be useful is going with them.

DRESSES get shorter and shorter, but it does not seem to cut down the price any. According to Miss Kitty Clyde East, an observant young girl of St. Petersburg, Fla., they're wearing skirts shorter in Paris. The ladies are buying more clothes, paradoxical as it may seem, for you can't wear a short dress as long as you wear a long one. Short dresses have popularized long stockings.

THE silk industry is expanding. They're making silk pants for the galloping Four Horsemen and their brethren of the wild pigskin herd. Some day some fellow will invent silk golf hose and then see them add more machinery to the factory.

WITH the passing of Ban Johnson, the American League loses a good friend, a man who builded wisely and well. Without Ban Johnson at the helm in the stormy days when the league was a gasping infant, there would have been no league.

MEMBERS of two interim legislative commissions will hold three hearings in Northern Minnesota this week, being the reforestation committee and the house committee on local indebtedness, taxation and finance.

TEMPERANCE SUNDAY will be observed throughout Minnesota and the United States by temperance units, according to an announcement by the Women's Christian Temperance Union.

ONE of the first cars of its kind seen in our Brainerd Lake Region was a Maxwell bearing a Honolulu, Hawaii, license plate. Pretty far from home and some ocean jump to get back.

No matter what crisis may face an American girl, she does not lose her lip stick or vanity case. That seems to have been all that Ruth Elder saved when her plane went up in smoke.

MRS. FRANCES GRAYSON is intent on flying to Copenhagen. She is "up to snuff" in all her preparations and equipment including the destination.

SYNOPSIS

Sheila Kildare and her father emigrate to America from Killanmaul, Ireland, following Emmett Murtough, to whom Sheila is betrothed. Neither of the men will hold steady jobs in New York City, Murtough becoming a truck driver for a band of bootleggers. Sheila makes friends with the family of Rory O'Shea, a professional boxer, whose kindness interests her. Murtough is involved with Clarice Clancey, a cabaret girl. At the night club she is approached by a mysterious man who wants to know Murtough.

"Who's the other one?" asked the thin leader.

"Don't know him. Think I've seen him around, but all these guys look alike today, the ones that wear their hair slick. He seems familiar, but I can't place him."

"Do you think this girl will come through?"

"Maybe; he's not wise enough to be suspicious, and if we can line him up we'll take Mannie Clocker for plenty. That ship he's got on the way in has got a hundred and fifty thousand dollars' worth of uncut stuff if its got a drop. And it's stuff we can cut three times and it'll still be good!"

The music stopped and the conversation among the three was silenced. Leisurely they paid their accounts and bidding farewell to Clarice and Cissie they passed out into the street. The three parted quickly in front of the door and each hailed a different taxi-cab, though all gave the same address, a very quiet and orderly family hotel downtown.

"He won, mother, he won!"

CHAPTER IX
Rory O'Shea's Battle.

Mrs. O'Shea herself climbed the three flights of stairs that led to the Kildare apartment to invite Sheila and Old Tom down to hear announcement, round by round, of the fights at the Garden over the radio. Old Tom demurred at first, as he still was ashamed of quitting his job with Tim O'Shea, but the novelty of radio tempted him. They were the only guests. The other children of the O'Sheas all owned homes and radio equipment of their own. Not only that, but jobs to go to early in the morning. They couldn't afford to be wasting their sleeping hours by visiting the old folks in the midweek. At least, so old Mrs. O'Shea assured Sheila.

Michael O'Shea censored the reception. He experimented with one station after another, catching a marvelous concert by one of the most popular jazz orchestras, or by reference to the daily program he would manage to capture a program of old-fashioned songs of which Kathie, his wife, was so fond. But he kept his ear on the station broadcasting from the Garden that night, and when the preliminary bouts were uninteresting he shut them off pre-emptorily. So carefully did he time his return to the Garden station that they caught even the few introductions of other lightweights which immediately preceded the O'Shea-Campeau bout.

The eyes of the proud mother and father lighted when the announcement came that their Rory had entered the ring. The cheers for O'Shea that swept the huge hall brought an electric tingle to the cheeks of Sheila. Here was a hero! Campeau's reception was not so sweeping for the French lad had not yet won the hearts of the fans. Too few had seen him in action to have become true hero worshippers.

The preliminaries to the bout were short. The management was anxious to get on to the Brown—Malloy go. The managers of the heavyweight fighters had already warned the promoter repeatedly not to occasion any unnecessary delay no matter how popular the rest of the card proved to be with the crowd.

The first and second rounds were without much interest. The men had fought each other before and they were wary of the pitfalls which they knew existed. Toward the end of the second the "boo" chorus began, but it was short lived. There was a sharp exchange, toe to toe, just as the bell rang and the warmed up fans applauded.

"Take him Rory, take him!" "Carry the fight to the frog!" "Go on Campeau!" "Mix it up, mix it up!"

The bell for the third round quieted the audience. Campeau and O'Shea opened up now. Rory to his own satisfaction had found that the two previous rounds had left him hardly with a sweat. He sprang from his chair to meet Campeau near the latter's own corner. Returned confidence made Rory the aggressor and he carried the fight to his rival. But Campeau remained unharmed. The youth of the boy was holding out gamely against Rory's superior ringmanship. Experience and youth equalized the fighting qualities of the two men and while the round of fast fighting lifted the galleries to their feet, neither man showed appreciable damage and the round was even, just as had been the first two.

Sheila was now thoroughly aroused and excited. The calling of blows meant nothing to her, for she did not understand the language of the prize ring but when the voice of the announcer rang out: "Campeau draws first blood with left jab," Sheila felt her heart jump but was quickly reassured when old Mrs. O'Shea put in quietly, "Rory always did bleed easily in the nose, even when he was a baby."

It was the end of the sixth round that Rory began to feel the pace. He had carried the fight to the other and had delivered as much punishment as he had taken, but he feared Campeau's quicker recovery due to youth.

"Take it careful, Rory," whispered Jimmy Tree as he and Reagan sponged him down. "No more chances now. You can go the twelve rounds easy and you've still got the punch that'll win, if you wait for it. Tire him out a bit and take it easy. He'll probably start in to finish you now. Let's hope he does. Just wait and shoot it home; and, don't waste a single one. If you haven't got it pointed, don't shoot! You're going fine and remember you can do only what you think you can do!"

The sixth proved unsatisfactory to the crowd. Campeau rushed his opponent, but skillful Rory easily avoided these onslaughts and forced Campeau to waste precious strength in efforts against the wily older man. Campeau deserved the round for sheer agressiveness, but Rory walked to his chair with a smile and waved to a couple of newspaper writers who yelled good luck to him.

"That's the stuff, Rory," Reagan cried. "You're fresher now compared with him than you were at the end of the fourth. It's a win you'll get sure out of this."

"Now, for the lucky seventh," said Rory as he spat out the water and relaxed for those precious ten seconds that precede the bell.

Campeau was more wary this round. Each man felt out his opponent trying to judge the remaining strength and stamina in the other. And as the seconds passed in this skillful fencing Rory actually felt new vitality sweep into his body. Still he waited. He knew he must win by a knockout and he must be sure that the opening was made to order. Campeau advanced, there was an exchange of jabs and Rory sent his right to the jaw. It rocked Campeau and O'Shea followed it with his left. Campeau's body bent and he started to the floor but before his knees touched the canvas Rory shot his right again. It went home truly and Campeau was out, knocked unconscious without so much as a bruise to show where the blow had landed on his chin.

"One! Two!" the count came slowly across the air and into the little apartment where mother and father waited and a girl listened wide-eyed and confused. Here was suspense but by the time the call of "eight" had sounded the cheers and the cries of Rory O'Shea's name left no doubt as to the winner.

"He won, mother, he won!" Old Mike shouted and even Old Tom Kildare cried, "Good Boy, Rory, good boy!" "God Bless him," added his mother. Sheila alone was silent. She did not know what to do or what to say, but she was glad that Rory had won his fight.

The colorful scene as it was described by radio was not without its shock to Sheila. Brutal calls of the gallery fans for blood had sickened her. It seemed unfair for her, unmanly for men to howl for two of their own kind to try to slaughter each other. The business of the Great War had hardly touched at Killanmaul, save for the half dozen out of the whole countryside who had gone into it.

Campeau's reception was not so sweeping for the French lad had not yet won the hearts of the fans. Too few had seen him in action to have become true hero worshippers.

The preliminaries to the bout were short. The management was anxious to get on to the Brown—Malloy go. The managers of the heavyweight fighters had already warned the promoter repeatedly not to occasion any unnecessary delay no matter how popular the rest of the card proved to be with the crowd.

The first and second rounds were without much interest. The men had fought each other before and they were wary of the pitfalls which they knew existed. Toward the end of the second the "boo" chorus began, but it was short lived. There was a sharp exchange, toe to toe, just as the bell rang and the warmed up fans applauded.

"Take him Rory, take him!" "Carry the fight to the frog!" "Go on Campeau!" "Mix it up, mix it up!"

The bell for the third round quieted the audience. Campeau and O'Shea opened up now. Rory to his own satisfaction had found that the two previous rounds had left him hardly with a sweat. He sprang from his chair to meet Campeau near the latter's own corner. Returned confidence made Rory the aggressor and he carried the fight to his rival. But Campeau remained unharmed. The youth of the boy was holding out gamely against Rory's superior ringmanship. Experience and youth equalized the fighting qualities of the two men and while the round of fast fighting lifted the galleries to their feet, neither man showed appreciable damage and the round was even, just as had been the first two.

Sheila was now thoroughly aroused and excited. The calling of blows meant nothing to her, for she did not understand the language of the prize ring but when the voice of the announcer rang out: "Campeau draws first blood with left jab," Sheila felt her heart jump but was quickly reassured when old Mrs. O'Shea put in quietly, "Rory always did bleed easily in the nose, even when he was a baby."

It was the end of the sixth round that Rory began to feel the pace. He had carried the fight to the other and had delivered as much punishment as he had taken, but he feared Campeau's quicker recovery due to youth.

"Take it careful, Rory," whispered Jimmy Tree as he and Reagan sponged him down. "No more chances now. You can go the twelve rounds easy and you've still got the punch that'll win, if you wait for it. Tire him out a bit and take it easy. He'll probably start in to finish you now. Let's hope he does. Just wait and shoot it home; and, don't waste a single one. If you haven't got it pointed, don't shoot! You're going fine and remember you can do only what you think you can do!"

The sixth proved unsatisfactory to the crowd. Campeau rushed his opponent, but skillful Rory easily avoided these onslaughts and forced Campeau to waste precious strength in efforts against the wily older man. Campeau deserved the round for sheer agressiveness, but Rory walked to his chair with a smile and waved to a couple of newspaper writers who yelled good luck to him.

"That's the stuff, Rory," Reagan cried. "You're fresher now compared with him than you were at the end of the fourth. It's a win you'll get sure out of this."

"Now, for the lucky seventh," said Rory as he spat out the water and relaxed for those precious ten seconds that precede the bell.

Campeau was more wary this round. Each man felt out his opponent trying to judge the remaining strength and stamina in the other. And as the seconds passed in this skillful fencing Rory actually felt new vitality sweep into his body. Still he waited. He knew he must win by a knockout and he must be sure that the opening was made to order. Campeau advanced, there was an exchange of jabs and Rory sent his right to the jaw. It rocked Campeau and O'Shea followed it with his left. Campeau's body bent and he started to the floor but before his knees touched the canvas Rory shot his right again. It went home truly and Campeau was out, knocked unconscious without so much as a bruise to show where the blow had landed on his chin.

"One! Two!" the count came slowly across the air and into the little apartment where mother and father waited and a girl listened wide-eyed and confused. Here was suspense but by the time the call of "eight" had sounded the cheers and the cries of Rory O'Shea's name left no doubt as to the winner.

"He won, mother, he won!" Old Mike shouted and even Old Tom Kildare cried, "Good Boy, Rory, good boy!" "God Bless him," added his mother. Sheila alone was silent. She did not know what to do or what to say, but she was glad that Rory had won his fight.

The colorful scene as it was described by radio was not without its shock to Sheila. Brutal calls of the gallery fans for blood had sickened her. It seemed unfair for her, unmanly for men to howl for two of their own kind to try to slaughter each other. The business of the Great War had hardly touched at Killanmaul, save for the half dozen out of the whole countryside who had gone into it.

COACH KASCH TO INSTRUCT GRADERS ON FUNDAMENTALS

BUILD MATERIAL FOR FUTURE HIGH SCHOOL ELEVENS

FIRST MEETING FOR GRADE SCHOOL BOYS AT HIGH TO BE HELD SATURDAY

OPEN FIELD RUNNING, INTERFERENCE RUNNING AND TACKLING—FIRST STEPS

Boys of the 6th, 7th and 8th grades of all Brainerd schools will meet Saturday morning at the high school at 9:30 o'clock at which time they will be given instructions by Coach Warren Kasch relative to fundamentals in football which is expected to help considerably in producing first class Brainerd teams for the future.

Open field running, interference running, reverse running, position for tackling and blocking will be taken up as fundamentals for offensive while on the defense positions for the linemen and secondary defense will be taken up.

Fundamental points in punting, forward passing, drop kicking, and place kicking will also be taught. It is necessary for all boys planning on going out for football when they are in high school to turn out for the proper time to learn the early fundamentals is in the grade schools. Such stars as "Red" Grange, "Moon" Baker, Herb Joesting, learned football in their grades.

There will be very little chance for players in future years to make the high school team unless they secured their training while in the grades on fundamentals in this manner and for that reason all boys are urged to turn out.

BOSTON BRAVES SEEK MANAGER

TY COBB, TRIS SPEAKER AND EDDIE COLLINS GET MENTION

New York, Oct. 19.—(UP)—The names of Ty Cobb, Tris Speaker and Eddie Collins, three of baseball's greatest stars, have been linked with the Boston Braves through speculation over a manager for that team next season.

Dave Bancroft was given his release last week as manager and short stop of the Braves to permit him to sign with the Brooklyn Robins.

"We have two or three men under consideration and expect to sign one of them this week," Judge Emil Fuchs, president of the Braves, said.

Cobb and Collins still are the property of the Philadelphia Athletics and Speaker belongs to Washington, and for the Braves to get any one of the trio waivers would be necessary.

However, it is doubtful if any American League club would be willing to meet the salary demands of any one of them as a regular player.

Since Speaker played with the Red Sox during the heights of their power, he is regarded as the leading possibility of the three men mentioned in the rumors.

TRIS SPEAKER SPOKEN OF AS BRAVES MANAGER

Cleveland, O., Oct. 19.—(UP)—Tris Speaker, member of the Washington baseball club and former manager of the Cleveland Indians, has not signed to manage the Boston Braves, his wife told the United Press today.

Speaker left Chicago yesterday to spend a month hunting in the Wyoming hills. Mrs. Speaker, who was with him up to the time he left, said he had stated his intention of forgetting about baseball until he returned.

"I'm sure he has not signed to manage any team," Mrs. Speaker asserted "if he had, I would have been the first one to be informed."

McLarnin Knocked Out Kaplan

Chicago—Jimmy McLarnin, Los Angeles lightweight, knocked out Louis "Kid" Kaplan, former featherweight title holder, in the eighth round. Roleaux Saguero, Cuba heavy, knocked out Earl Blue, Fargo, N. D., in the third round. Archie Bell, Brooklyn, knocked out Kid Lencho, Mexican featherweight, in the fourth round. Sammy McLarnin, brother of Jimmy, won a decision from Joe O'Malley, Chicago welter, in ten rounds.

EASTERN FOOTBALL TEAMS RELAXING IN DEFENSE

NEVER GIVES CHANCE FOR OVERCONFIDENCE

New York, Oct. 19.—(U.P.)—Joe Schwarzer, assistant football coach at New York University, will never give a player a chance for overconfidence. He believes in telling the young athletes that they are none too good.

In the rain of yesterday, he shouted at the backfield:

"Get a move on! I've seen backfield stars so fast they could run through this rain without getting their heads wet."

"We can do that," Frank Briante, noted line plunger, assured the coach solemnly.

Schwarzer challenged Briante to produce.

A short time later Briante, Conner, Strong and Roberts, the violet backs, appeared for scrimmage under umbrellas.

PITTSBURGH, PRINCETON NOT SCORED ON

THE ONLY MAJOR SCHOOLS FAILING TO ALLOW RIVALS SINGLE POINT

IDEA IS PREVALENT TO MAKE MORE POINTS THAN OPPOSITION

By PAUL W. WHITE
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

New York, Oct. 19.—The list of undefeated eastern football elevens will be reduced considerably after the coming week-end and earlier than in years the really outstanding teams of the Atlantic seaboard will have come to the fore.

With passing of easy September and October schedules may come another change—a relaxation in the defense. Time was when the bigger and better teams tried valiantly to keep their goal-lines uncrossed through the season. But now the idea is merely to make more points than the opponents—not to whitewash them.

Hence after only three or four games Pittsburgh and Princeton are the only major schools in this section which have failed to allow their rivals a single point and by Sunday both probably will have been scored on.

Pittsburgh goes up against Carnegie Tech which has a pretty crafty offensive that may be expected to produce at least one touchdown. Princeton encounters the hard-driving Cornell eleven in one of the major games on Saturday's card. The Ithaca eleven should be able to cross the Tiger goal line.

All of the other leading eastern squads have been scored against. Dartmouth, with a record of 178 points in four games, has permitted its opponents 14 points. The crack New York University team has allowed 13 points; Williams 37, Washington and Jefferson 12, Syracuse 12, Army 18, and Cornell 6.

Incidentally Pitt and Princeton and the seven teams mentioned in the above paragraph are the only ones in the east playing consequential schedules that remain undefeated.

Dartmouth will have its first real test against Harvard at Cambridge Saturday. In its early games the big green eleven appeared of championship calibre but the crimson aggregation has been rejuvenated since the Purdue debacle and may spoil Coach Hawley's plans.

Williams will face Columbia, which, still smarting from the defeat by Colgate, may inflict the first defeat on the Massachusetts team. Syracuse will encounter Penn State, conqueror of the University of Pennsylvania. Army will meet Yale, a strong opponent on the basis of Eli's fight against Brown last week.

Washington and Jefferson will have its hands full with the Lafayette eleven. N. Y. U. is the only one which has it easy, meeting a weak Rutgers team.

It is doubtful if five teams in the east will remain undefeated after the fourth Saturday in October.

THREE BRAINERD HIGH GRIDDERS ON THE INJURED LIST

LaCOURSE HAS SPRAINED WRIST, BUSCHER SORE LEG AND GEIST, SPRAINED MUSCLE

LOCAL TEAM HOWEVER DOPED TO WIN AGAINST AITKIN SATURDAY

The Brainerd high team is preparing for a real contest against Aitkin next Saturday afternoon and it is expected that the team will enter the Aitkin game with different fight and determination than was exhibited in the Crosby-Ironton game last Saturday.

LaCourse is on the injured list with a sprained wrist. Buscher has a sore leg and Geist is still hobbling on crutches. It is not known what the starting lineup will be on account of the injuries of these men. Frank Wise is calling signals from the quarterback position this week. Welliver is taking LaCourse's position as tackle.

There may be a change in lineup of ends because of the weakness in that position in Saturday's game.

The Aitkin team is a very fast, agressive team, centered around one man, Stevens, half back, who will bear watching. He is a ten second man in track.

Brainerd however should outscore them by agressive charging.

POSTAL INSPECTORS DENY JAIL BREAKER O'CONNER WAS TAKEN

St. Paul, Oct. 19—(U.P.)—Reports that Tommy O'Conner, Chicago, who escaped from jail there two years ago, was held by postal inspectors here were denied today.

A local man known as Tommy O'Conner, who appeared in a government case a year ago, was arrested in Minneapolis a week ago on a charge of drunkenness, is held there pending investigation.

Postal inspectors declared there was no connection between the Tommy O'Conner in custody and the man sought by authorities in Chicago.

GIRL FOUND GUILTY, INVOLVED IN MURDER

DOROTHEA WALSER SENTENCED TO 21 YEARS IN PENITENTIARY

HUSBAND OF MARION, IND., WOMAN FACES 1ST DEGREE MURDER CHARGE

Marion, Ind., Oct. 19.—(U.P.)—Dorothea Walser prepared today for a new phase of her already crowded life.

The girl yesterday was found guilty of participating in the murder of her twelve year old cousin, Clifford Cox, for his life insurance, and automatically was sentenced to a term of two to twenty-one years in the penitentiary.

Dorothea is seventeen years old. She was married at fifteen and became a mother at sixteen. She apparently did not understand at first the meaning of the words uttered by the jury foreman, but when told by her father, she murmured:

"Well, that isn't such a terribly long time. Life, now, that's a long, long time."

Arthur Walser, her 28-year-old husband, appeared uneasy when told the jury's verdict. He goes on trial at the next term of court in connection with the case, and apparently is afraid of a first degree murder conviction.

Young Cox was slain last May. Dorothea and her husband were arrested a short time later, and confessed to the killing. They later repudiated the confessions.

The girl sat yesterday, holding her baby in her arms, while she waited for the jury to come in. She talked freely of the case, expressing hatred for her husband whom she declared plotted the crime.

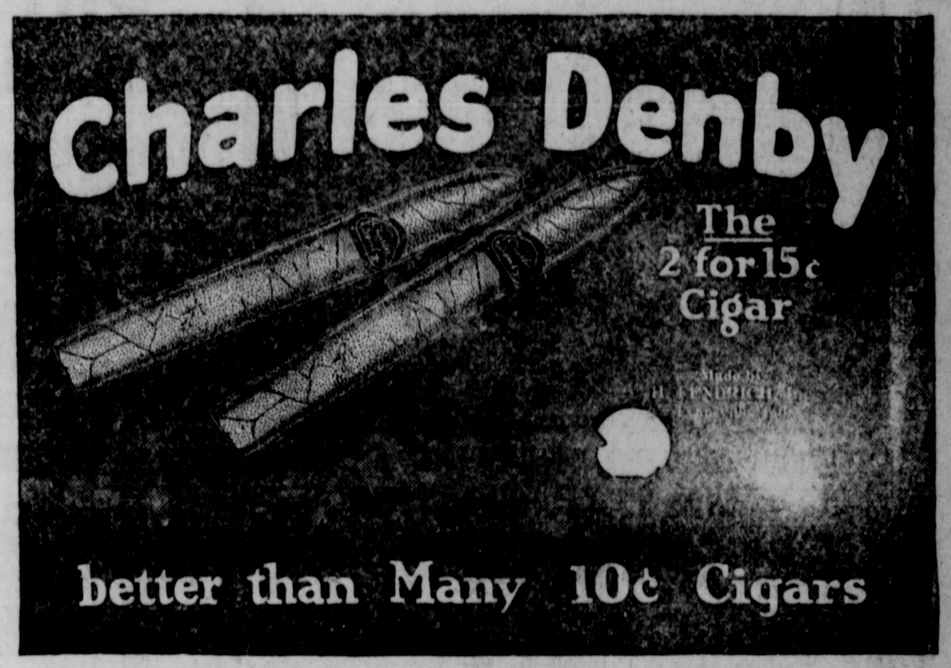

She said he mixed paris green with lemonade and gave it to the boy. She also charged Walser with being cruel to her.

Today Dorothea will be taken to the penitentiary, to start her sentence.

ALABAMA TO PROBE THE KU KLUX KLAN

Montgomery, Ala., Oct. 19.—(U.P.)—Attorney General Charles C. McCall of Alabama announced today he is planning a state-wide investigation of the Ku Klux Klan in an effort to show conspiracy to defeat justice in masked floggings investigations he has conducted.

In a biting denunciation of alleged efforts to intimidate witnesses in Crenshaw county flogging trials, opening Nov. 21, McCall said he would "literally fill up the jails of the state if threats against witnesses are continued."

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

New York, Oct. 19.—The list of undefeated eastern football elevens will be reduced considerably after the coming week-end and earlier than in years the really outstanding teams of the Atlantic seaboard will have come to the fore.

With passing of easy September and October schedules may come another change—a relaxation in the defense. Time was when the bigger and better teams tried valiantly to keep their goal-lines uncrossed through the season. But now the idea is merely to make more points than the opponents—not to whitewash them.

Hence after only three or four games Pittsburgh and Princeton are the only major schools in this section which have failed to allow their rivals a single point and by Sunday both probably will have been scored on.

Pittsburgh goes up against Carnegie Tech which has a pretty crafty offensive that may be expected to produce at least one touchdown. Princeton encounters the hard-driving Cornell eleven in one of the major games on Saturday's card. The Ithaca eleven should be able to cross the Tiger goal line.

All of the other leading eastern squads have been scored against. Dartmouth, with a record of 178 points in four games, has permitted its opponents 14 points. The crack New York University team has allowed 13 points; Williams 37, Washington and Jefferson 12, Syracuse 12, Army 18, and Cornell 6.

Incidentally Pitt and Princeton and the seven teams mentioned in the above paragraph are the only ones in the east playing consequential schedules that remain undefeated.

Dartmouth will have its first real test against Harvard at Cambridge Saturday. In its early games the big green eleven appeared of championship calibre but the crimson aggregation has been rejuvenated since the Purdue debacle and may spoil Coach Hawley's plans.

Williams will face Columbia, which, still smarting from the defeat by Colgate, may inflict the first defeat on the Massachusetts team. Syracuse will encounter Penn State, conqueror of the University of Pennsylvania. Army will meet Yale, a strong opponent on the basis of Eli's fight against Brown last week.

Washington and Jefferson will have its hands full with the Lafayette eleven. N. Y. U. is the only one which has it easy, meeting a weak Rutgers team.

It is doubtful if five teams in the east will remain undefeated after the fourth Saturday in October.

The Brainerd high team is preparing for a real contest against Aitkin next Saturday afternoon and it is expected that the team will enter the Aitkin game with different fight and determination than was exhibited in the Crosby-Ironton game last Saturday.

LaCourse is on the injured list with a sprained wrist. Buscher has a sore leg and Geist is still hobbling on crutches. It is not known what the starting lineup will be on account of the injuries of these men. Frank Wise is calling signals from the quarterback position this week. Welliver is taking LaCourse's position as tackle.

There may be a change in lineup of ends because of the weakness in that position in Saturday's game.

The Aitkin team is a very fast, agressive team, centered around one man, Stevens, half back, who will bear watching. He is a ten second man in track.

Brainerd however should outscore them by agressive charging.

POSTAL INSPECTORS DENY JAIL BREAKER O'CONNER WAS TAKEN

St. Paul, Oct. 19—(U.P.)—Reports that Tommy O'Conner, Chicago, who escaped from jail there two years ago, was held by postal inspectors here were denied today.

A local man known as Tommy O'Conner, who appeared in a government case a year ago, was arrested in Minneapolis a week ago on a charge of drunkenness, is held there pending investigation.

Postal inspectors declared there was no connection between the Tommy O'Conner in custody and the man sought by authorities in Chicago.

GIRL FOUND GUILTY, INVOLVED IN MURDER

Marion, Ind., Oct. 19.—(U.P.)—Dorothea Walser prepared today for a new phase of her already crowded life.

The girl yesterday was found guilty of participating in the murder of her twelve year old cousin, Clifford Cox, for his life insurance, and automatically was sentenced to a term of two to twenty-one years in the penitentiary.

Dorothea is seventeen years old. She was married at fifteen and became a mother at sixteen. She apparently did not understand at first the meaning of the words uttered by the jury foreman, but when told by her father, she murmured:

"Well, that isn't such a terribly long time. Life, now, that's a long, long time."

Arthur Walser, her 28-year-old husband, appeared uneasy when told the jury's verdict. He goes on trial at the next term of court in connection with the case, and apparently is afraid of a first degree murder conviction.

Young Cox was slain last May. Dorothea and her husband were arrested a short time later, and confessed to the killing. They later repudiated the confessions.

The girl sat yesterday, holding her baby in her arms, while she waited for the jury to come in. She talked freely of the case, expressing hatred for her husband whom she declared plotted the crime.

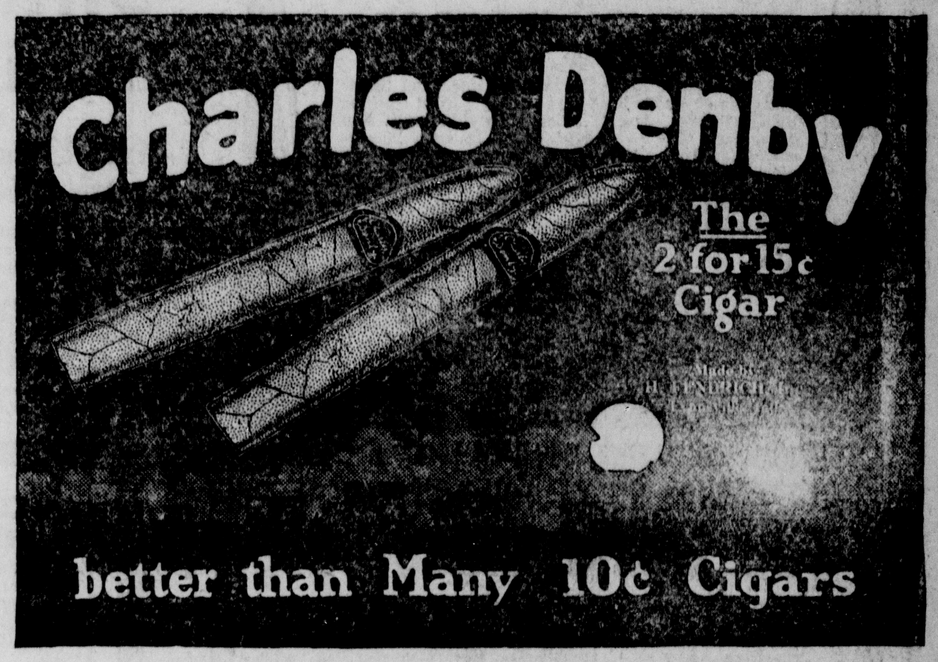

She said he mixed paris green with lemonade and gave it to the boy. She also charged Walser with being cruel to her.

Today Dorothea will be taken to the penitentiary, to start her sentence.

ALABAMA TO PROBE THE KU KLUX KLAN

Montgomery, Ala., Oct. 19.—(U.P.)—Attorney General Charles C. McCall of Alabama announced today he is planning a state-wide investigation of the Ku Klux Klan in an effort to show conspiracy to defeat justice in masked floggings investigations he has conducted.

In a biting denunciation of alleged efforts to intimidate witnesses in Crenshaw county flogging trials, opening Nov. 21, McCall said he would "literally fill up the jails of the state if threats against witnesses are continued."

DEFLECTS BLAME OF INTERFERENCE

Water and Light Board Contends That Radio Troubles Can't be Blamed to Them

REAL CAUSE UNSEEN

Records Show That Current Loss in City Has Been Very Low

The Water and Light Board of the city of Brainerd who have received numerous complaints from radio owners regarding so called "local interference" feel that discomforts of radio owners cannot be blamed to city wiring or equipment owned by the city.

The following letter has been received by Andrew J. Wesley, chairman of the water and light committee from Carl Zapffe, president of the Water and Light Board explaining the condition existing:

"This will confirm the results of our conference relating to radio interference which your committee and the board discussed at the regular meeting of the Board on Sept. 28.

"The board believes that it has not been established that the discomforts of radio owners is either primarily or generally the result of defective exposed wiring or equipment owned by the city. Our records of current loss, commonly termed 'transmission loss,' have been so very low for many years that visiting electrical experts have marvelled at our performances, and we have always felt this to be a matter justifying pride. We are not unmindful of the likelihood of the development at any time of a serious defect in our system, and we shall remedy promptly any such defects when same are discovered.

"Time and again we have responded to complaints by radio owners who made specific complaints, which, when investigated, we found due to defects entirely off our lines and not caused by equipment belonging to the city. In a few instances searchers found defective apparatus owned by us, but they disclosed sparks and shorts that were so readily observable that no search with scientific apparatus would be necessary to locate the defect.

"We have viewed this matter in the light of a spirit of cooperation between the city as an organization and its citizens as owners of an instrument of enjoyment, but we believe that it is not a duty of the city to undertake to solve radio troubles which are altogether too poorly understood by even scientific experts whose sole work is with radios. We have experienced too often that small motors, electrical appliances, wiring, piping, and the like, inside the houses are more often the causes of disturbances than outside distribution systems."

RAISES $2,000 BAIL

Frank Cromett, Released, Must Stand Trial With Three Others on Assault Charge

Frank Cromett, one of the four Pine River men charged with assault in the second degree upon Hjalmar Olson, Jenkins village marshal after a dance Saturday night, today was released from the county jail having raised the bail of $2,000.

The other three, Roy Bryant, John Bryant, and Howard Robideau have failed so far to raise the bail. The four were bound over to the district court from the municipal court this week.

CITY IN DARKNESS

Fuse, Unable to Hold Heavy Load, Thrown Out; All Lights on in 20 Minutes

Business houses were virtually at a standstill last evening at the supper hour when the city was flooded with darkness for about 20 minutes. The lights went out all over the city shortly before 6 o'clock.

Due to a heavy load, the fuse through which power is carried to the city was thrown out at the Brainerd station. It required considerable time and care in order to reinstall the fuse.

There being separate switches for the business district, street illumination and the residential districts, street lights were turned on first.

An intensive hour and a half of study of Europe leading up to the Renaissance constituted the activity of the Kappa Delphians at their meeting last evening at the home of Mrs. Arthur Turcotte. Mrs. M. P. Gerber was in charge.

Following the discussion the Delphians enjoyed "The Gondoliers." The copy of "Delphians Two Hundred Years Ago" was discussed which includes among other things in the preface, "Set forth by the most learned scholars in the most famous universities of Europe for the advancement of Divine and human learning, for the month of September 1719."

SPOOKS INVADE P. T. A. MEETING

Cuyuna School House Scene of Joyful Gathering Last Evening

NEW ORCHESTRA PLEASES

A ghost dance with eight school children dressed as "spooks," a witch, lighted pumpkins, musical selections by a newly organized school orchestra, speeches from Brainerd men, were included in the program of the Cuyuna Parent Teachers Association last evening at their schoolhouse which was enjoyed by over 130 people.

L. B. Kinder, judge of probate court, Brainerd, gave an interesting talk on the lives of great American citizens, illustrating the opportunities the average individual has to succeed in life. He praised the Cuyuna P. T. A. for their work and the enthusiasm shown by the town in school advancement.

E. H. Rhodes, district forest ranger, Brainerd, gave a short talk on forestry conditions in Minnesota and the United States, urging cooperation of every person in keeping down fires.

The Cuyuna school district is very proud of their new orchestra and rightly so. The orchestra consisting of eight musicians is conducted by William Knupple, of Crosby. Members are: David Barceau, Hilden Carlson, Willard Wilding, Fred Oswalk, Helen Pryhel, Atkin Stark, Marshall Freerks, and Mrs. William Knupple.

Young Marcada May, dressed in an Indian costume, crooned a pretty lullaby song, hushing a papoose to sleep. The Hallowe'en number was greatly appreciated. George Freerks gave a recitation entitled, "The Big Wind." Refreshments were served.

IN COUNTY 57 YEARS

Robert Morrill, Gull River, 80 Years Old, Knew Brainerd in Early Days

A resident of this county for 57 years, Robert Morrill, 80 years old, has seen times change for better and for worse. He recalled incidents of his life on his visit to Brainerd today.

"I was born in the State of Maine, living there until 21 years old. I came to Brainerd when I was of age and worked on the log drives down the Mississippi. Brainerd at that time had very few buildings. The main occupation was logging," said Mr. Morrill.

"Forty-five years ago I worked in the Gull River area doing logging work. I have lived there for the past 18 years. When we came to Brainerd in the seventies we had to cross the Mississippi river on a ferry which operated just above the railway bridge."

More Land O'Lakes Butter Needed

The name "Land O'Lakes" has made many new markets for co-operative creamery butter of high quality. People are now asking for it by name in eighty of the leading cities of the United States.

While Land O'Lakes Creameries will sell over eighty million pounds of butter this year, it is not enough to fill the demand created for good butter through the Land O'Lakes system of manufacturing and marketing.

The 425 member creameries of Land O'Lakes Creamery Association have worked together for six years. They have met with splendid success because these member creameries have been successful in their creamery work for an average of over twenty-five years.

The successful co-operative marketing of their butter is only a natural step in their progress.

Through working together with one standard for manufacturing and marketing, a higher average price has been received for butter based on market quotations than was ever received by co-operative creameries during any same length of time before Land O'Lakes was organized.

Through a wider and more systematic distribution the general price level of butter has been raised.

Land O'Lakes Creameries need more Land O'Lakes butter—100 more co-operative creameries should join Land o' Lakes this coming year. Their butter is needed for the increased demand.

Creamery Boards or anyone desiring information on Land O'Lakes methods, are invited to visit Land O'Lakes headquarters in Minneapolis and see the way the butter is handled,—graded by the government,—laboratory tests,—the print room turning out as high as seven carloads of print butter a day. It's a splendid demonstration of what farmers can do by working together. Give your patrons first hand information before their next annual creamery meeting. Land O'Lakes Creameries is pleased to have the farmers vote on whether their creamery shall become a member.

The record of Land O'Lakes Creameries covering six years work is an open book for any creamery board or farmer who wishes to see the results of co-operative marketing on a large scale.

DEFLECTS BLAME OF INTERFERENCE

Water and Light Board Contends That Radio Troubles Can't be Blamed to Them

REAL CAUSE UNSEEN

Records Show That Current Loss in City Has Been Very Low

The Water and Light Board of the city of Brainerd who have received numerous complaints from radio owners regarding so called "local interference" feel that discomforts of radio owners cannot be blamed to city wiring or equipment owned by the city.

The following letter has been received by Andrew J. Wesley, chairman of the water and light committee from Carl Zapffe, president of the Water and Light Board explaining the condition existing:

"This will confirm the results of our conference relating to radio interference which your committee and the board discussed at the regular meeting of the Board on Sept. 28.

"The board believes that it has not been established that the discomforts of radio owners is either primarily or generally the result of defective exposed wiring or equipment owned by the city. Our records of current loss, commonly termed 'transmission loss,' have been so very low for many years that visiting electrical experts have marvelled at our performances, and we have always felt this to be a matter justifying pride. We are not unmindful of the likelihood of the development at any time of a serious defect in our system, and we shall remedy promptly any such defects when same are discovered.

"Time and again we have responded to complaints by radio owners who made specific complaints, which, when investigated, we found due to defects entirely off our lines and not caused by equipment belonging to the city. In a few instances searchers found defective apparatus owned by us, but they disclosed sparks and shorts that were so readily observable that no search with scientific apparatus would be necessary to locate the defect.

"We have viewed this matter in the light of a spirit of cooperation between the city as an organization and its citizens as owners of an instrument of enjoyment, but we believe that it is not a duty of the city to undertake to solve radio troubles which are altogether too poorly understood by even scientific experts whose sole work is with radios. We have experienced too often that small motors, electrical appliances, wiring, piping, and the like, inside the houses are more often the causes of disturbances than outside distribution systems."

Frank Cromett, one of the four Pine River men charged with assault in the second degree upon Hjalmar Olson, Jenkins village marshal after a dance Saturday night, today was released from the county jail having raised the bail of $2,000.

The other three, Roy Bryant, John Bryant, and Howard Robideau have failed so far to raise the bail. The four were bound over to the district court from the municipal court this week.

Business houses were virtually at a standstill last evening at the supper hour when the city was flooded with darkness for about 20 minutes. The lights went out all over the city shortly before 6 o'clock.

Due to a heavy load, the fuse through which power is carried to the city was thrown out at the Brainerd station. It required considerable time and care in order to reinstall the fuse.

There being separate switches for the business district, street illumination and the residential districts, street lights were turned on first.

NEW ORCHESTRA PLEASES

A ghost dance with eight school children dressed as "spooks," a witch, lighted pumpkins, musical selections by a newly organized school orchestra, speeches from Brainerd men, were included in the program of the Cuyuna Parent Teachers Association last evening at their schoolhouse which was enjoyed by over 130 people.

L. B. Kinder, judge of probate court, Brainerd, gave an interesting talk on the lives of great American citizens, illustrating the opportunities the average individual has to succeed in life. He praised the Cuyuna P. T. A. for their work and the enthusiasm shown by the town in school advancement.

E. H. Rhodes, district forest ranger, Brainerd, gave a short talk on forestry conditions in Minnesota and the United States, urging cooperation of every person in keeping down fires.

The Cuyuna school district is very proud of their new orchestra and rightly so. The orchestra consisting of eight musicians is conducted by William Knupple, of Crosby. Members are: David Barceau, Hilden Carlson, Willard Wilding, Fred Oswalk, Helen Pryhel, Atkin Stark, Marshall Freerks, and Mrs. William Knupple.

Young Marcada May, dressed in an Indian costume, crooned a pretty lullaby song, hushing a papoose to sleep. The Hallowe'en number was greatly appreciated. George Freerks gave a recitation entitled, "The Big Wind." Refreshments were served.

Robert Morrill, Gull River, 80 Years Old, Knew Brainerd in Early Days

A resident of this county for 57 years, Robert Morrill, 80 years old, has seen times change for better and for worse. He recalled incidents of his life on his visit to Brainerd today.

"I was born in the State of Maine, living there until 21 years old. I came to Brainerd when I was of age and worked on the log drives down the Mississippi. Brainerd at that time had very few buildings. The main occupation was logging," said Mr. Morrill.

"Forty-five years ago I worked in the Gull River area doing logging work. I have lived there for the past 18 years. When we came to Brainerd in the seventies we had to cross the Mississippi river on a ferry which operated just above the railway bridge."

THINK THEY HAVE FOUND "MISSING LINK"

AN UNSPANNED GAP PREVIOUSLY BETWEEN EGYPTIANS AND PHOENICIANS

Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 19.—(UP)—Two Harvard professors believe they have discovered the "missing link" between those funny looking hieroglyphics on Egyptian mummy cases and the modern A B C's.

From the time some uncouth ancient first chipped on stone his crude affections for Miss So-and-So, a fairly unbroken history of thought symbols had been unearthed with the exception of an unspanned gap between the shorthand of the Egyptians and the long-hand of the Phoenicians.

Dr. Kirsopp Lake, professor of ecclesiastical history at Harvard, and his companion, Prof. Robert F. Blake, knew that little Willie Phoenician was the first lad to learn any sort of alphabet.

They decided to find out just who had changed the style from Egyptian picture writing on caskets and valentines to word formations with letters.

The professors, some months ago, set out for sun-baked Mount Serabit, 70 miles from Suez, where, they had heard, were the famous undeciphered red Serabit inscriptions.

Since 1906 scientists had known that the Serabit inscriptions existed, but no one could read them.

After lurching along on camels for five days through "black volcanic mountains which looked as if they had been made and then discarded," Professors Lake and Blake arrived at the base of Mount Serabit. A day's hike on foot, under a broiling sun, took them up to the mountain top.

Working in a temperature of 115 degrees in the shade, the Harvard party chipped the huge Serabit tablets to portable size, so that they might be carried by camel back to the museum at Cairo for deciphering.

Later, study of the inscriptions revealed that though written in Egyptian signs, the characters did not represent Egyptian objects, as have all previous heiroglyphic tablets. Instead they stood for words in another language, the Semitic.

"They are closely related to the next step in the evolution of writing, the Phoenician alphabet, which also was Semitic," Dr. Lake explained. "From the Phoenician all modern alphabets are derived."

Dr. Lake continued: "It seems to us that we have here the missing link between the Egyptian heiroglyphics and the Phoenician alphabet, and if so, it becomes extremely probable that the alphabet was the invention of some early Semite who took Egyptian signs and gave them the value of Semitic consonants."

The complete story of how the alphabet was evolved soon will be revealed by the professors in a report to be published in technical journals. They recently returned to Cambridge from Cairo.

"PATRIOTISM" IS DEFENSE PLEA IN OIL CASE

erance of the navy's defense plans. He painted Fall and Sinclair as aiding these plans by opening a way—with navy acquiescence—to furnish some fuel oil for battlecraft in exchange for the crude oil of Teapot Dome. The deal, he said, had not been of profit to Sinclair.

The Teapot lease, Littleton said, had proven "onerous to Sinclair."

In support of his claim that Sinclair and Fall were not arch conspirators, Littleton lifted the curtain on a secret meeting of the navy general board where, he said, Admiral Robison had told of the oil exchange plan of saving "royalty oil for emergency use of the nation in time of peril."

This was taken as a clear indication that Littleton would adopt much the same tactics as the defense employed in the Fall-Doheny case, namely, to claim that his clients were national benefactors rather than conspirators to cheat the nation of valuable oil holdings.

The navy judge advocate general had even approved the exchange plan, Littleton contended.

Harking back to that conference of New Year's, 1922, on Fall's New Mexico ranch, Littleton told the jurors the defense would lend it a new aspect. The defense, he said, would show that it was primarily to discuss Osage Indian oil lands, though Sinclair did inquire if Teapot Dome was to be leased. This, however, Littleton suggested, was only a step in furtherance of the navy's dream of getting fuel for its sea forces by trading crude oil holdings in Wyoming. Further, Littleton set up the plea that Teapot Dome was about to be drained by adjoining private wells unless it were tapped and its rich resources taken out.

After Littleton concluded, the government started presentation of its case by calling G. W. Holland, U. S. geological survey lawyer, who identified President Wilson's executive order of April 30, 1915, creating the naval oil reserves, including the Teapot Dome, Wyo., lease and other records.

FORMER STUDENT IS SENTENCED TO PENITENTIARY

PLEADS GUILTY TO PILFERING CHECKS AND CURRENCY FROM BANK

Omaha, Neb., Oct. 19.—(UP)—Harold R. Hough, 20, former Northwestern university student and member of a well to do Chicago family, was taken to Nebraska penitentiary late yesterday to serve from two to five years after pleading guilty to pilfering checks and currency from a bank where he was employed here.

Hough, a juvenile prodigy, who graduated from high school at 12 and is an accomplished pianist, pleaded guilty to the charge. More than $30,000 worth of checks had been destroyed by Hough and his alleged accomplice, Richard Stowe, 21, postal inspectors said. The pair made away with about $350 in currency, bank officials charged.

Hough and Stowe had worked at the bank only four months when their scheme was discovered.

Hough said he started on the downward path after the death of his father and remarriage of his mother. He is now anxious to pay his debt to society and then go back to college to finish his course, he said after being sentenced.

Stowe pleaded not guilty to the charge and will be tried in district court shortly.

EARL CARROLL GETS PAROLE

By EDWARD W. LEWIS
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 19. — As Earl Carroll prepared today for his parole from federal penitentiary here, Dr. Charles P. Nellans, prison-physician, told the United Press he "did not think Carroll would be able to return to Broadway revue producing."

Dr. Nellans attended Carroll after the producer was brought here on a stretcher from Greenville, S. C., to begin his sentence of 366 days for perjury in connection with his famous "bath tub party" case.

"Is he well?" the physician was asked.

"Physically, he weighs from 25 to 30 pounds more than he did when he arrived," Dr. Nellans replied.

"Does he suffer from depression?"

"No," was the response, "it is better to say he is humiliated to an extreme."

Dr. Nellans, however, denied reports that there was anything the matter with the producer's heart, and in reply to a specific question as to whether he thought Carroll would be able to go back to producing plays, said:

"No, I don't. Nobody with the sensitive temperament of Carroll can go out of the prison the same as he came in."

The physician reviewed Carroll's collapse at Greenville, S. C., while en route here from New York last spring, and said:

"There was little fundamentally the matter with him at the time. He 'though' himself into that condition."

Meanwhile, Carroll maintained his customary close-mouthed composure, waiting for the parole which was approved by Attorney General Sargent at Washington yesterday.

Warden John Snook indicated the actual release would occur tomorrow.

The warden added that Carroll, who has been an honor prisoner on the penitentiary farm, would be moved to the prison proper late this afternoon or tonight.

Carroll learned of his parole when Atlanta newspapers were delivered at the penitentiary today. Official word from Snook, however, will await arrival of parole papers from Washington.

BRITISH LIBERAL PARTY SEEKS DISARMAMENT

ADVOCATES COMPLETE SUPPRESSION OF WAR AND NAVAL COMPETITION

SEEKS TO REDUCE NAVAL ARMAMENT OF THE BRITISH KINGDOM

London, Oct. 19.—(UP)—British initiative to insure effective disarmament and make complete suppression of war the dominant policy of every country was demanded in a manifesto issued today by the British liberal party, of which former Premier Lloyd George is chief.

The manifesto demanded specifically that Britain not only repudiate any idea of naval competition with the United States, but reduce her own armaments, "which are beyond the needs of the present situation."

Politicians interpreted the manifesto as a formal declaration of foreign policy in preparation for the next general election, which many think may be held within the next few months.

It is a sequel to the recent resignation from Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin's cabinet of Viscount Cecil of Chelwood.

Cecil, a League of Nations pioneer, was chief British delegate at the abortive Coolidge conference on cruiser limitation. He went through the conference faithfully, but not long after its failure he sent in his resignation with a letter attacking Britain's league and disarmament poicies as too uncompromising.

Cecil charged that Britain, by proper concessions that would have affected her safety, could have saved the Coolidge conference.

It was held here that the liberals were taking advantage of Cecil's action—a national sensation at the time—to revive faith in the league.

The manifesto demanded that Britain agree to refer all her international disputes to the Hague international court; negotiate general or individual arbitration treaties with other nations; reduce her own armaments and repudiate any idea of Anglo-American naval rivalry; and take steps to bring nearer the planned conference to form a clear, complete code of internation law affecting relations between nations.

Armament reduction, the manifesto declared, was essential because armaments were an incentive to war.

It was demanded that other nations disarm as they made Germany, once the most heavily armed nation, disarm under the Versailles peace treaty.

GOLD STRIKE IS MADE IN MONTANA

Helena, Mont., Oct. 19.—(UP)—Gold mining in Montana has again leaped to the fore following the digging last week of ore running $80 to the ton in gold.

The strike was made in the Golden Messenger mine, 22 miles northeast of here, Saturday, and the assay returns indicating the value of the ore was received late Tuesday.

The Golden Messenger is being developed as a low grade mine of large tonnage. The strike has aroused great interest in the York district where extensive placer diggings and several quartz mills produced millions of dollars in the '70s following the gold rush to Last Chance Gulch, where the capital city of Montana was established in 1864.

THINK THEY HAVE FOUND "MISSING LINK"

Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 19.—(UP)—Two Harvard professors believe they have discovered the "missing link" between those funny looking hieroglyphics on Egyptian mummy cases and the modern A B C's.

From the time some uncouth ancient first chipped on stone his crude affections for Miss So-and-So, a fairly unbroken history of thought symbols had been unearthed with the exception of an unspanned gap between the shorthand of the Egyptians and the long-hand of the Phoenicians.

Dr. Kirsopp Lake, professor of ecclesiastical history at Harvard, and his companion, Prof. Robert F. Blake, knew that little Willie Phoenician was the first lad to learn any sort of alphabet.

They decided to find out just who had changed the style from Egyptian picture writing on caskets and valentines to word formations with letters.

The professors, some months ago, set out for sun-baked Mount Serabit, 70 miles from Suez, where, they had heard, were the famous undeciphered red Serabit inscriptions.

Since 1906 scientists had known that the Serabit inscriptions existed, but no one could read them.

After lurching along on camels for five days through "black volcanic mountains which looked as if they had been made and then discarded," Professors Lake and Blake arrived at the base of Mount Serabit. A day's hike on foot, under a broiling sun, took them up to the mountain top.

Working in a temperature of 115 degrees in the shade, the Harvard party chipped the huge Serabit tablets to portable size, so that they might be carried by camel back to the museum at Cairo for deciphering.

Later, study of the inscriptions revealed that though written in Egyptian signs, the characters did not represent Egyptian objects, as have all previous heiroglyphic tablets. Instead they stood for words in another language, the Semitic.

"They are closely related to the next step in the evolution of writing, the Phoenician alphabet, which also was Semitic," Dr. Lake explained. "From the Phoenician all modern alphabets are derived."

Dr. Lake continued: "It seems to us that we have here the missing link between the Egyptian heiroglyphics and the Phoenician alphabet, and if so, it becomes extremely probable that the alphabet was the invention of some early Semite who took Egyptian signs and gave them the value of Semitic consonants."

The complete story of how the alphabet was evolved soon will be revealed by the professors in a report to be published in technical journals. They recently returned to Cambridge from Cairo.

"PATRIOTISM" IS DEFENSE PLEA IN OIL CASE

erance of the navy's defense plans. He painted Fall and Sinclair as aiding these plans by opening a way—with navy acquiescence—to furnish some fuel oil for battlecraft in exchange for the crude oil of Teapot Dome. The deal, he said, had not been of profit to Sinclair.

The Teapot lease, Littleton said, had proven "onerous to Sinclair."

In support of his claim that Sinclair and Fall were not arch conspirators, Littleton lifted the curtain on a secret meeting of the navy general board where, he said, Admiral Robison had told of the oil exchange plan of saving "royalty oil for emergency use of the nation in time of peril."

This was taken as a clear indication that Littleton would adopt much the same tactics as the defense employed in the Fall-Doheny case, namely, to claim that his clients were national benefactors rather than conspirators to cheat the nation of valuable oil holdings.

The navy judge advocate general had even approved the exchange plan, Littleton contended.

Harking back to that conference of New Year's, 1922, on Fall's New Mexico ranch, Littleton told the jurors the defense would lend it a new aspect. The defense, he said, would show that it was primarily to discuss Osage Indian oil lands, though Sinclair did inquire if Teapot Dome was to be leased. This, however, Littleton suggested, was only a step in furtherance of the navy's dream of getting fuel for its sea forces by trading crude oil holdings in Wyoming. Further, Littleton set up the plea that Teapot Dome was about to be drained by adjoining private wells unless it were tapped and its rich resources taken out.

After Littleton concluded, the government started presentation of its case by calling G. W. Holland, U. S. geological survey lawyer, who identified President Wilson's executive order of April 30, 1915, creating the naval oil reserves, including the Teapot Dome, Wyo., lease and other records.

Omaha, Neb., Oct. 19.—(UP)—Harold R. Hough, 20, former Northwestern university student and member of a well to do Chicago family, was taken to Nebraska penitentiary late yesterday to serve from two to five years after pleading guilty to pilfering checks and currency from a bank where he was employed here.

Hough, a juvenile prodigy, who graduated from high school at 12 and is an accomplished pianist, pleaded guilty to the charge. More than $30,000 worth of checks had been destroyed by Hough and his alleged accomplice, Richard Stowe, 21, postal inspectors said. The pair made away with about $350 in currency, bank officials charged.

Hough and Stowe had worked at the bank only four months when their scheme was discovered.

Hough said he started on the downward path after the death of his father and remarriage of his mother. He is now anxious to pay his debt to society and then go back to college to finish his course, he said after being sentenced.

Stowe pleaded not guilty to the charge and will be tried in district court shortly.

EARL CARROLL GETS PAROLE

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 19. — As Earl Carroll prepared today for his parole from federal penitentiary here, Dr. Charles P. Nellans, prison-physician, told the United Press he "did not think Carroll would be able to return to Broadway revue producing."

Dr. Nellans attended Carroll after the producer was brought here on a stretcher from Greenville, S. C., to begin his sentence of 366 days for perjury in connection with his famous "bath tub party" case.

"Is he well?" the physician was asked.

"Physically, he weighs from 25 to 30 pounds more than he did when he arrived," Dr. Nellans replied.

"Does he suffer from depression?"

"No," was the response, "it is better to say he is humiliated to an extreme."

Dr. Nellans, however, denied reports that there was anything the matter with the producer's heart, and in reply to a specific question as to whether he thought Carroll would be able to go back to producing plays, said:

"No, I don't. Nobody with the sensitive temperament of Carroll can go out of the prison the same as he came in."

The physician reviewed Carroll's collapse at Greenville, S. C., while en route here from New York last spring, and said:

"There was little fundamentally the matter with him at the time. He 'though' himself into that condition."

Meanwhile, Carroll maintained his customary close-mouthed composure, waiting for the parole which was approved by Attorney General Sargent at Washington yesterday.

Warden John Snook indicated the actual release would occur tomorrow.

The warden added that Carroll, who has been an honor prisoner on the penitentiary farm, would be moved to the prison proper late this afternoon or tonight.

Carroll learned of his parole when Atlanta newspapers were delivered at the penitentiary today. Official word from Snook, however, will await arrival of parole papers from Washington.

BRITISH LIBERAL PARTY SEEKS DISARMAMENT

SEEKS TO REDUCE NAVAL ARMAMENT OF THE BRITISH KINGDOM

London, Oct. 19.—(UP)—British initiative to insure effective disarmament and make complete suppression of war the dominant policy of every country was demanded in a manifesto issued today by the British liberal party, of which former Premier Lloyd George is chief.

The manifesto demanded specifically that Britain not only repudiate any idea of naval competition with the United States, but reduce her own armaments, "which are beyond the needs of the present situation."

Politicians interpreted the manifesto as a formal declaration of foreign policy in preparation for the next general election, which many think may be held within the next few months.

It is a sequel to the recent resignation from Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin's cabinet of Viscount Cecil of Chelwood.

Cecil, a League of Nations pioneer, was chief British delegate at the abortive Coolidge conference on cruiser limitation. He went through the conference faithfully, but not long after its failure he sent in his resignation with a letter attacking Britain's league and disarmament poicies as too uncompromising.

Cecil charged that Britain, by proper concessions that would have affected her safety, could have saved the Coolidge conference.

It was held here that the liberals were taking advantage of Cecil's action—a national sensation at the time—to revive faith in the league.

The manifesto demanded that Britain agree to refer all her international disputes to the Hague international court; negotiate general or individual arbitration treaties with other nations; reduce her own armaments and repudiate any idea of Anglo-American naval rivalry; and take steps to bring nearer the planned conference to form a clear, complete code of internation law affecting relations between nations.

Armament reduction, the manifesto declared, was essential because armaments were an incentive to war.

It was demanded that other nations disarm as they made Germany, once the most heavily armed nation, disarm under the Versailles peace treaty.

GOLD STRIKE IS MADE IN MONTANA

Helena, Mont., Oct. 19.—(UP)—Gold mining in Montana has again leaped to the fore following the digging last week of ore running $80 to the ton in gold.

The strike was made in the Golden Messenger mine, 22 miles northeast of here, Saturday, and the assay returns indicating the value of the ore was received late Tuesday.

The Golden Messenger is being developed as a low grade mine of large tonnage. The strike has aroused great interest in the York district where extensive placer diggings and several quartz mills produced millions of dollars in the '70s following the gold rush to Last Chance Gulch, where the capital city of Montana was established in 1864.
